The following is an email sent from Glenn Kelman, the Chief Executive Officer of Redfin Corporation (“Redfin”), to employees of Redfin on March 31, 2025.

Big news Redfin!

As you already heard from Rocket CEO Varun Krishna, Rocket announced this morning that it has entered into an agreement to buy another lender, Mr. Cooper, as part of a vision of full-lifecycle real estate. This follow-on note is to say more about what that means for us!

Nearly Ten Million Homeowners

Once Rocket’s separate deals with Redfin and Mr. Cooper close, our agents will have nearly 10 million more customers to call on, and our AI engineers will have a total of 30 petabytes of data to identify which home-owners need our help. In buying Mr. Cooper, Rocket is more than doubling its number of mortgage-servicing customers.

Mr. Cooper Is Primarily a Loan Servicer

Like Rocket, Mr. Cooper originates mortgage loans to people who want to buy a home. But Mr. Cooper’s main business is servicing loans: sending the bill to the borrower, tracking loan balances and escrow accounts, taking calls when the customer is worried about missing a payment.

A Massive Investment In Lifelong Customer Relationships

Many lenders ask other companies to handle servicing but Rocket, like us, wants a life-long relationship with its customers. The goal isn't just to earn a loan-servicing fee, but to identify new opportunities to help those customers, whether that's to refinance a mortgage or move to another home.

This Is All Part of One Vision

Some of you may wonder how Rocket will integrate two other companies, but each deal is part of one vision for Redfin and Rocket to serve our customers better. Rocket has already assigned a full-time integration team to help us work out a plan for welcoming Redfin employees to Rocket when the Redfin deal closes, likely in the second or third quarter of 2025. And even in the midst of this deal frenzy, Varun has found time to connect with Redfin employees from across our business. Redfin is the first part and an important part of something really big and beautiful.

Best, Glenn | Redfin CEO
